MEDC's Mission Statement is: "To serve as an authoritative voice in Missouri on economic development and related issues through an effective program of professional development, public policy, marketing and communications."

Lists of MEDC officers, directors and committee chairpersons are included for your quick reference.

PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT

This section is in response to many requests. We are providing information on several of the certification programs which are available to you as economic developers and the names of those MEDC members who we know have completed these programs. We hope that if you have not already done so that you will look into the possibility of continuing your education and taking advantage of the programs that best fit your career plan.

As we continue to strive to upgrade this publication, we value your thoughts and comments. Please contact either of us during the upcoming year.

PROFESSIONAL CERTIFICATION INFORMATION

In order for the Economic Development professional to continue to perform at the highest level of effectiveness, that professional must engage in the continuing education/certification processes of the economic development profession.

In addition to the professional development offerings of the Missouri Economic Development Council, there are a number of other allied educational organizations that provide Economic Development education/certification. The following is a listing of some of these programs and MEDC members that have received these certifications.

Certified Economic Developer - (CEcD)

The International Economic Development Council (IEDC) was formed in May 2001 from the merger of the American Economic Development Council and the Council for Urban Economic Development. With more than 4,000 members, IEDC is the largest membership organization serving economic development professionals across the United States and around the world. IEDC is dedicated to helping economic development professionals to create, attract, and retain jobs and investment in their communities.

IEDC Certification recognizes an economic development practitioner's personal and professional commitment to the profession. Certified economic development practitioners, or CEcDs, are recognized throughout the profession as having reached a level of professional and demonstrated a thorough understanding of the tools and programs of economic development. In order to receive CEcD certification, economic developers must pass a written and oral certification exam.

Information on IEDC, certification, and other membership benefits and services can be found at www.iedconline.org

Certified Chamber Executive - (CCE)

Applicants must have at least six years of senior-level chamber management experience and be currently employed in a senior-level chamber management position. Applicants must also successfully compete each step of the program: application, reference checks, essay/oral presentation/interview, examination, approval by ACCE's Board of Directors. The deadline to apply is October 15th. The entire program can be completed within one year. However, those applicants not completing the program within three years will be required to resubmit the application fee. For additional information contact:

Certified Manager - (CM)

The designation of Certified Manager (CM) is offered by the Institute of Certified Professional Managers (ICPM). ICPM was formed in 1974 by management educators, members of the National Management Association and the International Management Council. Its purpose was to recognize management as a profession by providing a respected certification program. The CM designation represents a third-party evaluation of knowledge in management theory and practice and offers recognition for demonstrated competency in the management profession.

In order to become certified, an individual must meet specific requirements in education and experience, as well as pass a comprehensive three-part examination. An associate CM designation is available for those lacking in either education or experience requirements. To maintain certification, CMs must complete 10 hours of professional development coursework annually.

As a non-profit corporation, ICPM is headquartered at James Madison University in Harrisonburg, VA. It is governed by a 19 member Board of Regents that determines policy for the organization. More than 10,000 management professionals employed in over 1,200 companies and agencies nationwide have earned certification through the Institute of Certified Professional Managers.

The four EDFP certification courses are five days in length. Certification candidates must complete all four courses and pass the proficiency examination administered on the final day of each class.
